resource available to those of us who would like to keep our Rotary directory at our fingertips – namely on our smart phone or I pad. With a power-point demonstration, Darrell showed us the step-by-step process of setting up the account necessary that will enable each Rotarian to access the website for both the District and Club information. After typing in the internet browser the website www.dacdb.com or (district and club database), there are several links presented that would enable us to view our own information in order to keep it up-to-date, but other Rotarians' profiles in our club as well. This website will virtually replace the traditional Rotary Club Roster that we have always referred to in order to keep in touch with our fellow Rotarians in the club. Additionally, it will put other information about local Rotary events and programs at our disposal and those that are sponsored by the whole district. Calling upon Gerri Clark, Karen Prater, Eva Stewart, James Glass and Frank Dawahare to provide assistance, those members with cell phones worked together to set up their user I.D. and password in order to get their account information in order. By the end of the program, most everyone was successful in getting access to this new resource. The next step is simply making use of the information to help

Ray's Ribs

Al and Joe are bungee jumping one day. Al says to Joe, "You know, we could make a lot of money running our own bungee jumping service in Mexico." Joe thinks this is a great idea, so they pool their money and buy everything they'll need; a tower, an elastic cord, insurance, etc.

They travel to Mexico and begin to set up on the square. As they are constructing the tower, a crowd begins to assemble. Slowly, more and more people gather to watch them at work. When they had finished, there was such a crowd they thought it would be a good idea to give a demonstration.

So Al jumps. He bounces at the end of the cord, but when he comes back up Joe notices that he has a few cuts and scratches. Unfortunately, Joe isn't able to catch him, and he falls again, bounces and comes back up again. This time, he is bruised and bleeding. Again Joe misses him. Al falls again and bounces back up. This time he comes back pretty messed up—he's got a couple of broken bones and is almost unconscious. Luckily, Joe finally catches him this time and says, "What happened? Was the cord too long?" Barely able to speak, Al gasps, "No, the bungee cord was fine. It was the crowd.

What the world is a piñata?"

Airman Jones was assigned to the induction center, where he advised new recruits about their government benefits, especially their GI insurance. It wasn't long before Captain Smith noticed that Airman Jones had almost a 100% record for insurance sales, which had never happened before. Rather than ask about this, the Captain stood in the back of the room and listened to Jones's sales pitch. Jones explained the basics of the GI Insurance to the new recruits, and then said: "If you have GI Insurance and go into battle and are killed, the government has to pay $200,000 to your beneficiaries. If you don't have GI insurance, and you go into battle and get killed, the government only has to pay a maximum of $6000."

"Now," he concluded, "which bunch do you think they are going to send into battle first?"
